What is Epoxy and What is it Good for?

Epoxy is a class of reactive prepolymers and polymers containing epoxide groups which are highly reactive and allow the resin to form strong bonds.

In layman's terms this means that epoxies are sticky. They make world class glues out of epoxies for good reason. We use an epoxy base coat because we are literally going to glue your floor down. We expect it to go down and stay down.

The epoxies we use are also resistant to moisture and the oils we find in garage floors.

During my 15 years in this business and having used lots of different coatings, Epoxies are simply the best there is for the base coat.

All About Norberto:

Norberto is not only a skilled and hardworking epoxy floor installer here at Integrity Garage Floors—he's also a proud family man who brings the same dedication to his home life. On weekends, Norberto and his family make time for what matters most: exploring new places, sharing meals, and hosting regular backyard cookouts with loved ones. He enjoys cooking, especially seafood inspired by his coastal roots, while his wife finds joy in gardening—her tomatoes and peppers are a summer highlight. Their daughters are creative and adventurous: one loves baking and painting, the other enjoys hiking and getting lost in a good book. Rooted in quality time, creativity, and connection, Norberto's family values reflect the same integrity he brings to every job.

JOHN DAY HOMES

Founded in 1987 as Middlefork Development Corporation, John Day Homes has become a trusted name in quality homebuilding across the Puget Sound. After rebranding in 1997, they've developed hundreds of homes in communities like Mercer Island, Bellevue, Sammamish, and beyond

We're proud to feature John Day Homes—not only for their outstanding work, but also because our families have a personal connection. Our children are friends, making this spotlight extra special for us at Integrity Garage Floors.

If you're looking to build your dream home, we highly recommend reaching out to John Day Homes. Their experience, craftsmanship, and commitment to excellence speak for themselves.
